February 8, 2018 Technical Meeting

Welcome to STLE Houston Chapter's 2018-2019 Lunch Seminar Series!

Our sixth technical seminar of the season will be held on FRIDAY, February 8, 2019 at Maggiano's Little Italy, starting off with networking at 11 AM. Darrell Bailey, Reliability Manager of Calumet Specialty Products will be presenting "Lubrication Training in Our Plants Today". Please reserve the date!

Abstracts:

Lubrication failure or improper lubrication is a huge cost to many plants all over the world. One of the leading reasons for lubrication failure is improper or inadequate lubrication training of the lubricant users at the plants. We will discuss common lubrication failures, some real life examples of lubrication failure, and best practices for training lubricant users in the plant.

Speakers:

Darrell Bailey is a Reliability Manager with Calumet Specialty Products who partners with Maintenance and Reliability professionals throughout many industries to help ensure their plants run as efficiently and safely as possible. After spending 27 years in industrial, manufacturing, and reliability maintenance and engineering roles with Anheuser-Busch/Inbev Inc. Darrell decided to switch careers and has worked for Calumet for nearly 4 years. Darrell's range of experience extends from hands on to supervision, plant maintenance & engineering management, system design/programming, reliability, and training.

Today, Darrell's role is to provide technical support, quality training, and equipment troubleshooting for Calumet Specialty Products customers, refineries, and sales staff. Darrell is a graduate of Ranken Technical College in St. Louis MO.
